Gaudi in Vienna

For one month only, the Architekturzentrum Wien devotes a large exhibition to the leading Spanish architect Antoni Gaudí.

Anyone who has ever visited Barcelona will know the work of the magnificent architect Gaudí (1852-1926). The best known project is his unfinished church, the Sagrada Família. What many do not know, however, is that Gaudí's architecture was based on his explicit wish for functionality. The exhibition "Gaudí. Trendsetting architecture" clarifies the incredible scope of Gaudí's work and shows the unusual methods he employed to create his designs.

The show is arranged into several areas: While the first deals with his biography, the second area presents Gaudí's best-known constructions (Casa Batlló, La Pedrera, Church of the Colònia Güell, Park Güell and the Sagrada Família) in videos, construction plans and models. The third area deals with Gaudí's early works, which were of great importance for the development of the parabolic arch that he made such frequent use of. Also presented are Gaudí's workshop and the site huts he erected on the construction site of each of his buildings in order to have somewhere to make models out of plaster, wood or clay right on the spot. The exhibition is rounded off with a chapter on the extensive design creations of Gaudí, above all his furniture design.

Mary Poppins

The magical nanny has already thrilled several generations. The German-language premiere of the musical opens in Vienna on 1 October 2014.

Many people can recall the wonderful story of the Banks family from the 1964 Disney film starring Julie Andrews. Mary Poppins is the name of the wondrous nanny who gets the children Jane and Michael to see reason with humor, wisdom and a dose of magic.

Apart from the enchanting story, the songs are still as catchy as ever, such as A spoonful of sugar. Or the song with the difficult to pronounce title Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious. The musical had its world premiere in London in 2004 and has since played to packed houses around in the world in many languages.

The German-language premiere is coming to Vienna's Ronacher with the original music by Robert B. and Richard M. Sherman. There are also new songs by George Stiles and Anthony Drewe. The role of Mary Poppins is performed by Annemieke van Dam, who is already known in Vienna for playing Elisabeth.

from October 1, 2014 to June 2015 in German

Dirty Dancing

The legendary dance film thrills millions of fans around the world with mambo and sensual hip-movements. In Vienna, the original stage show will deliver crackling suspense from 21 September to 26 October 2014, when Baby and Johnny discover their feelings for each other.

Haunting music, an exciting story and gripping dance scenes with Jennifer Grey and Patrick Swayze made the film Dirty Dancing a classic back in 1987. It generated a real Latin dance boom, and fans around the world and in Vienna attended salsa and merengue classes.

The story plays in the 1960s and is about teenager Frances, called "Baby", and dance instructor Johnny. Baby spends a boring holiday with her parents and sister in a run-of-the-mill holiday hotel. The highlight of the final party is a dance show, in which Johnny is to perform with his partner. When she pulls out, Baby steps in – and after a number of entanglements, Baby and Johnny even become lovers at the end.

The original stage show was sold out in London's West End for months, and the famous dancers and singers together with a live band will also thrill audiences in Vienna's Stadthalle. Naturally, all the hits will be sung, such as "Time of My Life", "Hungry Eyes" or "Do you Love me" (in German).

Wien Modern

The festival of modern music focuses on the composer Georg Friedrich Haas from 29 October to 21 November. There is also film music and a seven-part sitcom opera.

Vienna has a long tradition of new music. The twelve-tone technique originated here, and one of the most important festivals of contemporary music has been held in Vienna for the past 27 years. At the opening of Wien Modern on 29 October, the ORF Radio Symphony Orchestra Vienna plays the commissioned composition "concerto grosso No. 2" by the Austrian composer Georg Friedrich Haas, and the "concerto grosso No. 1" in the Musikverein on 4 November. Other works by Haas can be enjoyed throughout the festival, performed by the SWR Symphony Orchestra Baden-Baden and Freiburg, the Klangforum Wien, as well as the ensembles Kontrapunkte, Phace and oenm.

Wien Modern presents an unusual musical theater format for the very first time: The sitcom "Life on the edge of the Milky Way" by the Austrian composer Bernhard Gander. In the Berio Hall of the Wiener Konzerthaus, the performers will sit on a couch, just like on TV, and entertain the audience with various topics in seven episodes of 25 minutes each. The musical accompaniment is provided by Phace.

In addition to the sitcom, there is a series of further compositions in the context of film and TV. on screen is the focal point, which not only offers film music performed live, but is also held in cinemas. The highlight is the "Ciné-concert" in Vienna's Gartenbaukino, where the composer Olga Neuwirth provides her film music requiem to the silent movie "Maudite sont la guerre" of 1914 as a contribution to the anniversary year "100 Years of the First World War".

Waves Vienna

For four days in October, the Waves Vienna festival once again promises a packed program of extremely exciting music. Besides well-known headliners, Waves also offers the opportunity to discover new talents.

Waves Vienna, a premium music festival, will be held in Vienna for the fourth time from 1 to 4 October. The festival, with its more than 100 international acts from Alternative and Rock to Electronic and Club Music, has its focal point in the 1st district, and is held in various locations along the Danube Canal and the Ringstrasse. Established clubs such as Flex, Badeschiff and Brut will also be joined this year by venues such as the Konzerthaus and the House of Music, where classical music normally holds sway. Like last year, Waves Vienna will also be held in parallel on 3 and 4 October in Bratislava, which can be reached from Vienna by shuttle bus.

The performance by the friendly Australian Scott Matthew in the Konzerthaus on 1 October marks the start of Waves Vienna. After that, it's over to the festival headquarters in the former post office headquarters for the party. From 2 to 5 October, the festival is in full swing – with performances by The Hidden Cameras (CA), Alexis Taylor (Hot Chip) (UK), First Aid Kit (SE), David Douglas (NL), Pional (ES), Die Nerven (DE), The Town Heros (CA), Alcoholic Faith Mission (DK) and many, many more.

The Austrian music scene is represented by acts including the hang drum virtuoso Manu Delago, the alternative band Giantree, Schmieds Puls with its charismatic singer and the "Electrococo" act Johann Sebastian Bass.

The festival motto is once again "East Meets West". Music from this year's guest countries of the Netherlands and Croatia is highlighted and is the topic of the Waves Vienna Music Conference. The conference held at the University of Music and Performing Arts is part of the festival and offers presentations, panels and workshops on 2 October in Vienna and on 3 October in Bratislava.
